1. Reviewer Application

- 1.1 A user submits an application to become a reviewer.
- 1.2 The Editor reviews and evaluates the reviewer application, then either approves or rejects it.
- 1.3 If the application is rejected, the user will not be able to submit another reviewer application unless the Editor removes the existing application record.
- 1.4 If the rejected application record still exists and the user wishes to apply again, they must contact the Technical Journal editorial team via email. The editorial team will review the request and, if appropriate, remove the previous application record. Once the record has been removed, the user will be eligible to submit a new reviewer application.
- 1.5 After the new application is submitted, the Editor reviews and evaluates it again, then either approves or rejects the application.
